

1600 Acres of Marley Land
Under Contract

Three big real estate companies of Chicago are negotiating for the purchase of 1600 acres of land around Marley. Contracts have been signed up, but it is understood that no down payment has been made.

Some alarm was expressed by some of the land owners, that the purchasing of this land might mean the establishing of the negro colony which has stirred up much feeling in New Lenox and Frankfort townships within the last year.

But that their fears are groundless is shown by the fact that the contracts contain clauses stipulating that the land is never to be resold to any other than the caucasian race.

Just what the real estate promoters will do with the land has not been revealed as yet.

Mokena Bank
Burglar Proofed

The Mokena State Bank has been made buglar proof the past week by the installation of bullet proof glass and steel.

The entire cashier cage has been enclosed with bullet proof glass 3/4 of an inch thick. All wood work is backed with bullet proof steel while the windows are protected with bullet proof screens.

The doors leading into the cashier's cage and into the private office of the president, have also been backed with this same steel. These doors when closed can only be opened from the inside by means of an electric button.

The teller's windows are made absolutely proof from any sudden surprise a buglar might spring. There is a pocket-like dip under the window thru which money can be passed. Were a revolver placed in this pocket and fired, the bullet would be deflected upward by another sheet of bullet proof glass that comes down to the pocket from the inside, but a revolver could be fired from the inside and the bullet would go straight out.

Tuesday afternoon the glass was tested out in the presence of the bank officials when deputy Walter Fisher fired three shots from a 38 caliber revolver at the same spot in the glass. The only effect on the glass was a whitening of the surface same as seen on a piece of ice when it is struck. The bullets failed to pierce the glass, the lead being flattened out and falling to the floor harmless after coming in contact with the hard steel like surface of the glass.

Sometime ago a bank in Detroit protected with the same kind of bullet proof glass and steel was visited by bank robbers. When the cashier was ordered to throw up his hands he set off a burglar alarm while the bandit started shooting at the glass in front of the cashier aiming for his heart, but the bullets flattened out when they hit the glass and the bandits had to beat a quick retreat.

The glass and steel was installed by the Bankers Safety Fixture Company of Adena, Ohio, at a cost of $1500.

Officials of the Bremen State Bank of Tinley Park and of the Orland State Bank are much interested in the new bank protection and are seriously considering the installation of like equipment in their banks. Both the Mokena and Tinley Park banks were robbed in the past year.

New Concrete
Plant for Mokena

Moriarty the west 80 feet of lot 2 in block 5 improved with a one story building 24x34 feet now occupied by J. R. Bowen's carpenter shop. The new concern will open up their new headquarters at an early date it is understood.

Hold Fellowship
Meet at Mokena
M. E. Church

The Mokena M. E. church was the scene of a cordial fellowship meeting last Friday night. The fore part of the evening was given over to a special service at which the new District Supt. E. C. Lumsden of Dixon, Ill., presided. The Communion service was also observed. Mrs. J. V. Hall sang a solo "Rock of Ages" and Mr. Leon Tonn also sang a solo "Face to Face."

Following this service, a fellowship meeting was held and the audience enjoyed a general good time in the true sense of fellowship.

A program was rendered in which readings and special music were features. Mrs. Hall and Mr. Tonn sang pleasing solos again and Adeline Semmler, gave two readings, "Entertaining the Minister" and "When the Minister Comes to Call." Special music was furnished by the newly organized "Blue Streak Orchestra" which was much enjoyed by all. The orchestra is composed of: Leon Tonn, piano, Melvin Whitaker, Saxophone, Leon Kolber, 1st violin, Herman Barlewort, 2nd, violin, Wilbur Teska, banjo, John Bain, drum and traps.

Ministers Not In Pulpit Just For Monetary Gain

In a sermon on "The Preacher" at the M. E. church Sunday night Rev. Glen T. Beatty stressed the fact that the minister is being unduly criticised many times and some times he does deserve criticism. He pointed out that often times people say that ministers are only in the game for the money they can get out of it, and that they do not know what they are talking about or else they preach about things that go over the people's heads.

Rev. Beatty then pointed out that the ordinary minister is most poorly paid worker in the world considering the time he has to spend in preparation for the ministry. There are a few ministers who draw a salary of $5,000 per year and better, but if they used the same amount of mental and physical energy that they use in the ministry, in the field of law or medicine they could draw salaries that would make their present income look pitifully small. Rev. Beatty said the reason a minister is willing to serve the church for such small pay is that he loves folks and is anxious to spread the great gospel of Christ to all people.

If some people think that the preacher has a snap of a job and that he has only to work one day out of seven, they have a very poor conception of what a preacher is, the pastor declared.

Rev. Beatty announces that he will preach on the subject "The Preacher and The Layman" next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. He and the church people invite you to join the large crowd that is worshipping with them in these evening services.

Gala Day Marks Opening of New Oak Lawn Bank

The opening of the new Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank last Saturday was very largely attended and over 400 depositors opened accounts with the new bank. The deposits exceeded in amount the total of the capital stock. The bank officials are highly elated at the fine success of the opening day. A big future is predicted for the new institution with the development of Oak Lawn.

Mrs. Carl Wolf, wife of the Mayor of Evergreen Park, was the first depositor for the Savings account and Mrs. Arthur Jensen of the Oak Lawn Bakery was the first one to open a checking account. Baby Bruce Howard Dutton was the youngest child to deposit a savings account. Many of the leading banks of Chicago sent massive baskets and wreaths of beautiful roses and chrysanthemums as tokens of wishes of success. Each visitor of the bank received either a rose or carnation.

Ninety-fifth street was decorated with electric lights, flags, shields and banners. In the afternoon a parade of several hundred cars and being four miles long, left Oak Lawn, went east on 95th St., to Western Ave., south on Western to 111th St., and back west on 111th St., through Mount Greenwood and Worth to Kean Ave., and north to 95th St., and then home. The parade was led by Miss Bernice Emery and her mother, riding in the Marshall's car escorted by motorcycle policeman of the Cook County Highway Police, under command of Jacob Leppin, Evergreen Park Chief of Police Martin Osinga and Lieut. John Pallard, then followed the Fire Department, a large float with a large safe on it and a writing desk with Miss Lucille Jensen dressed as Liberty, seated at the desk, representing safety and the Spirit of America. The float was drawn by the Brandt Supply Company's truck which was loaded with youngsters cheering and making all the noise possible. Walter Schenk Lumber and Coal Co., had two floats, one a truck load of coal and was later presented to the Oak Lawn Lutheran church, and the other, was a load of window and door frames, then came Schultze's Bakery, Silver Cup Bakeries, Grennan's Bakery and a number of other bakeries. There were two beautiful industrial floats by the Heitman Lumber Co., of Chicago, John F. Schultz Material Co., Larson Coal and Supply Co., Oak Lawn Plumbing and Heating Supplies, Oak Lawn Electrical Co., Oak Lawn Wardware Co., Oak Lawn Cleaners and Dyers, Piper's Oak Lawn Garage The Economy Grocery Store, H. W. Elmore Real Estate and many others. Music was furnished by a Ladies String Quartet including harp, cello and two violins, playing in the bank while the H. W. Elmore band of twenty pieces furnished the entertainment outside.

This happy occasion was fostered and given thru the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce, under the able management of Mayor John T. Emery, James F. Curtis and Wm. Schultz, Chief of Police, was in control of an aeroplane which covered the entire distance and also that of the surrounding villages, dropping announcements of the opening of the bank. With these announcements were cards of different money value, the total amounting to $100. The finders of these cards are entitled to the amount stipulated thereon toward a saving account.

Among the prominent visitors were: Hon. United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, H. W. Elmore, Mr. Barry of the West Englewood Bank, Mr. Robertson, President of the Auburn Park State Bank, Mr. James Gilboy of the Cook County Highway Dept., Mr. J. K. Harrige of Chicago. These, and also the president of the new Bank, Mr. A. H. Behrends, gave short talks in interest of the bank and the Community at large. Other speakers were Judge Frank J. O'Brien, Alderman Wm. Schultz, Herman Claussen, Fred Trietzenburg and James F. Curtis. Mayor John T. Emery, gave the address of Welcome on behalf of the people of the Village of Oak Lawn, The City of Progress.

Over 400 checking and savings accounts were started, the amount received far exceeds the capital stock. The Bank was closed at 9:30 in the evening at the end of a perfect day which was the most remarkable day in the history of Oak Lawn.

New Hall Opened With 4 Act Drama

St. Mary's new hall at Mokena was used for the first time Monday night when the De Soto players of Joliet presented a four act drama entitled "Molly Bawn" for the benefit of St. Mary's church. This play was realistic to life and was very well acted. There was plenty of laughter and also a few tears. In all the play had a wonderful lesson connected with it.

A large audience filled the new hall which surely is a credit to Mokena.

Now with this broad foundation build: First take your special course and then take to the farm. You are now all you were above and more. As previously, you will make more out of your farm, you will raise the farming standard in your community. With the former meager preparation you were only one among ten thousand or a million, now you are one among a hundred, more or less, because you are a man with ideas, and you know how to express them. You may be an authority if you choose, writing articles on agriculture for magazines, compiling books. Or since you are a man of ideas and know how to express them, you can be of influence along still another line. Any political party in the country will be glad to have you—a respectable farmer—on its ticket. You can and you ought to enter politics to some extent. You are a scientific farmer, you have everything up and in order, you have some leisure. Well, well, as time goes on it proves that truth is stranger than fiction. Why there is farmer John Smith he has made his mark, he now occupies the governor's chair!

Injunction Issued Against Chicago
Health Com.

Dairymen in the Chicago dairy district are fighting mad over the proposed enforced T. B. testing of all dairy herds supplying milk to Chicago and this week succeeded in getting Circuit Judge William J. Fulton, Geneva, Ill., to grant them a temporary injunction, restraining Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health commissioner of Chicago and Chicago milk distributors from putting into effect a proposed order barring all milk from Chicago that comes from herds not tested for tuberculosis.

The order restricts and enjoins Dr. Bundesen from stating, representing, threatening or ordering by word of mouth or otherwise, or from causing the same to be done, that he individually or as commissioner of health of the city of Chicago, will in any manner prevent the sale of milk in the city of Chicago which has not been produced under state and federal supervision, or which has not been produced by cattle tested by the so-called tuberculosis test.

The Bowman and Borden Milk Companies and a number of other big milk distributors are made defendants in addition to Dr. Bundesen by the injunction.

Hearing on a permanent injunction will come up in February.

AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound School Teacher's Experience

Evanston, Wyoming.—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my mother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a displacement. This troubled me so that I could hardly walk or do my housework. I knew what the Vegetable Compound did for me before so I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kiddies. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. VERBENA CARPENTER, 127 2nd Avenue, Evanston, Wyoming.

She sprang to her feet, breathing quickly.

"Alan! What are you saying! Don't! Don't!"

"Why not?" he asked, getting up, too. "We can't remain blindfolded forever."

The mists fell from a huge mountain peak, and the color ebbed from the girl's face.

"Ah!" she murmured, clasping her hands. "Isn't the present—perfect? Don't precipitate—"

He took her by the shoulders, forcing her to face him. "We are only human," he said, in a low voice; "and, Barbara—I want my wife!"

She pressed her clenched hands against him, hiding her head upon them. "Oh, not yet! Don't think me obtuse, Alan. I have thought, too, and—"

"What have you feared?"

She did not reply for a moment; he waited, motionless.

When every accustomed bulwark of life has been demolished, the foundations of a fresh building are laid necessarily in a troubled soil composed of struggle, temptation, agonies of uncertainty.

The undeveloped girl, blindly groping after the "hidden want" in a materialistic environment, had gone forever. As the ripened corn sprung from its buried seed, the woman, sublime in her love, glories in the growing courage of the inner self she had tried to stifle, had arisen.

"We have found the true keynote here," she murmured brokenly at last, "and we must keep it tuned right. I wouldn't, for the world, spoil the beauty of everything."

"You couldn't—ever," he whispered into her hair. "But love is a terrific force which can't be turned on and off like hot water; or compressed into narrow preconceived channels."

He suddenly threw his arms round her and strained her to him. "Barbara! why should we be done out of our rights? We've been chucked out of the world; stripped of everything that made life worth living. But now we have discovered the greatest treasure of all. Are we to give that up because of—scruples? By G—d!"

With sudden anger he loosed her, clenching his hands. "I won't! I'm d—d if I'll agree to that! It isn't fair. You say I always get my way. Well—some time—"

She met calmly the passion and threat in his eyes. These untamed forces no longer alarmed her, as they would have done six months ago.

"Alan!" she protested, holding out her hand. He ignored it, gazing still upon the peculiar radiance of her face. She went to him, lifting both hands to his shoulders, her lips tremulous.

"There is more to be considered . . . not—not only ourselves. . . . My darling! don't you realize we are man and woman, and—"

Her flushed face sank on his breast. "Don't you see?" she whispered. "Others! Not—scruples."

A long silence succeeded her broken words. His arms closed around her again, and again he hid his face in her hair.

He raised his head at last; and as he pulled her hands down into his own his face looked strangely drawn.

"God help us both, Barbara!" he muttered huskily. "For we are in the very heart of a position. There was a strange blending of fear and adoration in the eyes of both, while they looked upon each other. "But I—I swear I'll—I'll never force you to—anything. Always remember that. And, for heaven's sake, don't—let me forget! I'm so d—d human," he added, with naive pathos.

For the first time since she knew him, she heard a lack of confidence in his tone. Conscious of those forces of nature against which they were but puppets, the woman in her rose to meet him.

"We can never lose faith in each other, Alan. That will help us. But—" she looked at the dearly loved figure. For one illuminating instant, all that marriage would mean between them flashed into her heart, awakening the mother dormant within her. "Ah! But it's going to be hard—hard—hard!"

The cry burst, involuntarily, from her lips. All the love and longing which inspired it shone in the gaze which seemed to envelop him as a glowing fire. . . . For a space he stood silent, lost with her in a world which neither had dreamed of before. Then he stepped forward with a muttered ejaculation, and they clung together as they had clung on their first night on the island—two derelict beings swept over the world's edge. . . .

"Go in," he whispered tremulously, at last. "I can't come to supper tonight. I must go away alone for a bit . . . and think. . . . You've opened a new world to me tonight."

He kissed her with lingering gentleness, and turned away toward the shore.

Barbara walked slowly into the hut. But to her, also, food seemed impossible just then. That moment's illumination had opened up a new world for her, too—a world which, it seemed she was never to enter! . . . With a little sobbing breath she went into the sleeping hut and threw herself face downward on her bed. . . .

For a long time neither alluded to this conversation. A new chord had been struck between them, too deep for idle talk. A subtler difference, a shade more of seriousness, came into their relations. The shadow cast by the mountain peaks enveloped them. Try as they would, they could never quite free themselves from it.

Distractions of any sort became urgent; but to find them, in this small island, was no easy matter. However, Alan, after mentally viewing the land, took what frail material there was and wove it into ropes of support. That the ropes might break he could not foresee.

He turned once more, in pathetic hope, to the natives.

During the months since their first visit to the settlement, he had come to occupy the unique position of a semi-divine Overlord. His orders, issued at first in the spirit of bluff, were obeyed. This at first surprised, then amused, him. After a time, it afforded him intense interest. His orders regarding cleanliness were receiving extraordinary consideration; irrigation work had been undertaken. Now, he plunged with new zest into this novel training of prehistoric minds. He ordered the cultivation of taro to be re-instituted; tapestry-weaving from reeds to be revived. All this originating from fear, not inclination, slowly awakened the natives' interest, which increasing, caused much of their lethargy to vanish.

Within a few weeks, the last signs of a threatening new epidemic of sickness vanished, and the settlement became more wholesome. This being attributed to the what man's magic, their fear blended into a crude awesome affection, which struck Alan as pathetic. Gradually his visits became hailed even with delight. For, in matters of dispute, Chinabahal appealed to him, relying more and more on his counsel. And, swayed by none of the opposing elements, he dealt with a severe justice, yet humaneness, which they found both novel and attractive. Withal, he braced them, stimulating their latent powers, much in the same way in which he had stimulated Barbara, by the mere force of his own vitality.

Her own interest in these people grew apace. From Alan she learned some of the dialect, very soon being able to speak a little herself. Some-

The ruined huts were strictly tabu, haunted by the spirits of those slain there. Roowa, proudly radiant, began to build a new hut, to which Meamaa and his two children could be fetched.

Within a short time smoke arose from Meamaa's cooking; and two small black figures danced, like imps, among the palms.

II

"I wonder," suggested Barbara, when they strolled together one night, "if we ought to teach them Christianity."

Alan looked down, smiling at these lingering instincts of the parson's daughter; but shook his head.

"If they learn gentleness, kindness and cleanliness, don't you think they are acquiring the spirit of it?" he asked. "These will permeate, paving the way, if you think it necessary to teach them Christian creeds later. But don't upset their old faiths yet—they are not ready. It's always a dangerous thing. If it's hurried, it is fatal."

She thrust her arm through his. "You're awfully wise, Alan mine! You seem to know just how to manage the natives. Why is it, I wonder?"

"Because I care for them. You can usually understand those you love, if you try. See how well I manage you!"

She laughed; then felt his arm. "D'you know, you're getting thin Alan."

"Hard work."

"I have noticed it in your face, too. You mustn't work so incessantly—there's no need."

"Isn't there? Ah, Barbara! I think there is."

She looked up quickly; but he had turned his face seaward; only the grim set mouth was visible. The woman in her thrilled to him, for she understood. Clapping his arm tightly, she laid her face against it.

"Dear!" she murmured.

"We have been here nearly a year," was his only response.

"I know."

They walked on in silence a while, passing near Roowa's hut. Just outside the entrance the native and his wife sat close together, the youngest child asleep in the man's arms, both too much absorbed in low-toned conversation to notice their approach. The natives' love may be little above that of an animal for its mate; but it contents them.

Barbara's clasp tightened, as these two outcasts from all laws looked upon the group.

"They are very happy, Alan, I often watch them."

"So do I—my G—d!"

She glanced up in surprise at the passionate tone in his voice.

"I sometimes wish I had never brought them here," he continued. She was silent a moment; then drew his hand swiftly up to her face. With her lips against it, she whispered, so low that he had to bend down to catch her words:

"Do you ever look at—their little ones—and think—supposing—if—only?"

"Barbara! I do."

He turned and drew her into his arms. "I have thought of it all—over and over again! I think of nothing else."

The relief of speaking, for once, about the theme which lay heavy upon their hearts caused discretion to be thrown to the winds. "It haunts me!" she cried passionately, clinging to him. "It haunts me day and night. I can't bear to see them. I've tried—"

"And I, by heaven!"

Loosing her abruptly, he threw himself down upon the rock outside the hut and bowed his head in his hands. What was passing through his mind she could only surmise by the chaos of emotion which, now the barriers were down, surged through her own. All these weeks both had struggled to forget the problems menacing them. But the very straws at which they had caught proved to be, so to speak, serpents in disguise. For nature, crude and unattended, ruled this island. By her inexorable laws these primitive people were guided, unabashed, in all good faith. And among these subtle forces working around them, undermining the very ground beneath their feet, the two were flung together in a solitude, a familiarity, so maddening yet so entrancing, that their senses were inflamed at every turn. Escape was impossible. Wherever they moved they were confronted with their own rising passion. Regarded as man and wife they shrank now from visiting the settlement together. Throughout the days each constantly surprised the other's furtive, hungry, troubled regard. Conversation became often strained, demonstrativeness between them a danger. Throughout the night each lay listening to the other's movements and breathing, through the frail bamboo partition. No longer could they shout careless badinage, hold midnight talks. . . . But, since the building of the palisade, neither had dared put into words the fear rising ever higher in their hearts.

He uncovered his face at last, and looked up at her, a grim defiance in his eyes.

"We can't go on like this. It's damnable! Barbara—come here."

Hesitating a little, not understanding the unusual expression of his face, she went toward the hand he held out. He caught her roughly by the arm, pulling her down to her knees at his side, gazing into her eyes for several seconds without speaking—searching, proving her in some inexplicable manner.

"How much do you love me?" he demanded, at last.

She looked startled at his peremptory tone. "Why do you ask such questions?" But she collapsed against him. "With my very life," she whispered passionately. "I should die if I lost you now."

He strained her close, pressing hot lips to hers. "How far would you go with me? How far?" he muttered eagerly.

"To eternity!" she murmured, half faint with the sudden passion sweeping them both away. The arms holding her were trembling.

"If we never get rescued? How far then? How far, Barbara?"

Only a little stifled gasp answered him.

All the soft night odors of the forest were stealing down to the beach, blending with the pungent smell of hot earth, mingling with the languorous murmur of the tide. Close in his arms, a weak craving to surrender, to capitulate before the forces arrayed against them both, swept over her. It was easy to let all else go. . . . Twice she opened her own lips, but no words would come; only her eyes told him that which caused his senses to reel. His grip tightened, so that he hurt her; but the pain was an exquisite joy. . . .

The animal in man, longing fiercely for its mate, had been let loose in Alan, stronger for all these months of temptation and repression. The future at this moment lay in his hands—and he knew it, exulted in the knowledge. . . .

Half unconsciously he rose to his feet, lifting her, unresisting, with him. Her warm young body lay acquiescent, at his mercy. He took a step toward the hut; cast one dazed look round the darkening beach—

From Roowa's dwelling the faint cry of a child came to them, wafted upon the soft night breeze down the bay. . . .

The girl heard it, and raised her head. The man heard it, and caught his breath. Their eyes met.

She slipped from his arms with a long quivering sigh. They stood facing each other, struggling with the turbulence of their emotion.

"Reverberations! Do you—remember?" she whispered, at last.

He made no reply, continuing to gaze upon her face, and she went on speaking, almost to herself, standing before him with the darkness closing around her.

"The vast harmony in which each note has unlimited effect upon every other note." You taught me that. Do you remember? Life's harmony, you said. We—we are forgetting."

He turned away and walked to the lagoon, standing there for several minutes, his back toward her, his hands covering his face. When he returned, he had, she could see, regained his self-control. Coming close, he laid his hands upon her shoulders.

"Are we perhaps troubling over what may never happen? Barbara—there might be no—no 'reverberations.' There are not, always."

She smiled at him, a smile that was almost maternal. "That's true. But—" She broke off, a little catch in her breath, her eyes dwelling dreamily upon the face above her own, as if picturing something far off and passing beautiful. . . . "But it wouldn't be fair," she muttered to herself.

A flush mounted to his cheek in meeting and interpreting the look which, momentarily, his own eyes reflected.

"The thought of you troubles me most," he owned. "The question of 'fairness' is so open one. This is a grand free life for anybody who knows no other. The world might think it unfair. But the world doesn't count with us. We are savages now. But you—you! Oh, my darling, . . . Nature is so hard on women."

Her face was hidden on his breast. He went on diffidently, whispering into the dark hair.

"The question of 'reverberations' shall be yours entirely. Do you understand? If you decide not to face it all—"

"Ah! no, no, no!" She raised her head quickly. "Alan, I love you for that. But I won't shrink! Don't ever think I mean that." She turned her luminous eyes seaward. "Imagine a little home with just you and me—and a dear little nest all our own. . . . Oh it's cruel, cruel!" Passionately she gripped his shoulders. "I long for it all—I ache inside. Sometimes I dream we have it together; and then—then I wake up—"

"But we can have it, here, now," he interrupted eagerly. "Only the forms would be absent; the spirit would be there. Surely, in these circumstances, we can make our own laws?" He took her clinging hands in his. "Barbara, have you thought over the matter? Faced it squarely?"

Best Way to Use Phone

Telephone companies for many years have reiterated the advice that users should talk directly into the transmitter, but recent tests have for the first time set forth in concrete terms the result of disobeying the injunction. It was found that to talk with the lips six inches from the transmitter was equivalent to inserting another 200 miles of line between the speaker and the listener. The best results were obtained, the tests disclosed, when the mouth was only one-half inch from the transmitter and facing directly into it, thus avoiding deflection of sound waves.—Popular Mechanics Magazine

"Why, Uncle Jim!
You look ten years younger!"

"When I saw you a couple of months ago, I made up my mind you were getting old. At least you looked it."

"Yes, Billie, and I felt old. No appetite, couldn't sleep nights—one day just like another, and none of them any good. I knew constipation was at the bottom of it, but it seemed the more laxatives I took the worse I got. Then one day I saw Nell giving Nujol to my little grandson. The doctor had prescribed it for the baby, but I found out it's just the thing for old fellows like me, too."

"I tell you, Billie, it keeps me feeling fine all the time. My appetite's back and I sleep like a child."

If I look any younger, Nujol gets the credit."

Nujol helps Nature in Nature's own way

Middle age brings on a decrease in the natural lubricating secretions in the intestine. Then you need Nujol. It supplies the deficiency of the natural lubricant. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is gentle, safe and natural in its action.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. It is not a medicine.

You can take Nujol for any length of time without ill effects. It should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol today and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Miss Selma Baumbler of Chicago was with us again as well as Miss Evelyn Hanson of Palos. The next meeting is to be at Nellie Crandall's home on December 3rd.

On Friday night, November 20th the young people of Worth went to the Forest Preserve for a "Steak Fry." This was quite a new experience for most of us and as a result the young folks have elected Ed Rolfe as their regular fireman and Paul T. Sanders as chief cook. Paul T. certainly knows how to cook steak and as a fireman Ed can't be beat. We are looking forward to another affair of this kind in the near future.

Next Sunday evening, November 29th, at 7:30 p. m., the Rev. Ray Bond of Evanston will speak at the Worth community church. Rev. Bond has a message for the community and everyone is especially urged to attend. Be sure to come out and bring your friends.

Our "community night" is to be postponed until Friday, Dec. 4th. The people of the community have worked so well together in the past year that we are setting aside this night to play together. Come over and get acquainted with your neighbors. You'll be surprised to find that the very sedate people next door are just as jolly and full of fun as you are. You will surely "miss some thing" if you fail to attend.

Remember the date is December 4th, and the place is the Worth community Church.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister. Rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Pimples

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happiest girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them—kills them right out—stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous, red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin—drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.

All drug stores sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for November 29

PAUL BEFORE AGRIPPA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 25:1-26:32.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."—Acts 26:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells Why He Obeyed Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Tells a King About Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obedience to the Heavenly Vision.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Defense of His Mission.

More than two years had elapsed since Paul had been tried before Felix, during which time Jewish hatred for him had not abated. As soon as Festus, the new governor, went to Jerusalem he was besieged with accusations against Paul. His accusers desired that he be brought to Jerusalem for trial, intending to lie in wait and kill him on the way. Festus refused their request, but agreed to give them an opportunity to accuse Paul if they would go down to Caesarea. They were unable to prove anything against him. Festus, willing to please the Jews, proposed to send him to Jerusalem for trial. Paul rebuked Festus for this, declaring that he knew very well that he was innocent. Seeing that it was impossible to get justice before Festus, Paul made use of his right as a Roman citizen and appealed to Caesar. This surprised Festus. His failure to release an innocent man placed him in an awkward position for he could give no explanation as to why an innocent man should go to Rome for trial.

I. Paul Before the King (25:13-27).
The occasion of his appearing before Agrippa was the visit of Agrippa and Bernice to Festus. Upon their arrival they expressed a desire to hear Paul, whereupon Festus told them of his perplexity. So it was arranged that Paul be brought before them for examination. The gospel should be preached to all regardless of wealth or station in life.

II. Paul's Defense Before Agrippa (26:1-27).

1. The Introduction (vv. 1-3).
He expressed his delight that he now could speak and tell his case to one who was able to follow his line of argument, for Agrippa was an expert in questions concerning the Jews; but most of all he was now happy in witnessing to him of the Savior, and perhaps leading him into the light of God.

2. His Manner of Life (vv. 4-12).
This he showed had been in strictest accord with the most rigid sect of Jews. He possessed the same hope, i. e., that of a coming Deliverer, and reminded them of the fact that formerly he was most bitterly opposed to Christ as his zeal would prove.

3. His Supernatural Conversion (vv. 13-15).

Jesus Christ appeared to him on the way to Damascus and revealed Himself to him.

4. Jesus Christ Commissioned Him for His Work (vv. 16-18).

He was sent unto the Gentiles:

(1) To open their eyes so awfully blinded.

(2) To perform the blessed work of turning them from darkness to light.

(3) To turn them from the power of Satan unto God.

(4) That they might receive forgiveness of sins.

(5) And that they might obtain an inheritance among the saints.

5. His Consecration (vv. 19-23).

As soon as he received his commission, he obeyed. Every man should instantly obey the call of God and devote his life to carrying forward the work entrusted to him. The vigorous prosecution of his work brought him into conflict with the Jews, for which they sought to kill him.

6. The Interruption by Festus (v. 24).

Seeing how thoroughly in earnest Paul was, Festus attempted to account for it by calling him a crank, attributing it to the ravings of an unbalanced mind.

7. Paul's Appeal to Agrippa (vv. 25-27).

Still maintaining his courage, he appealed to Agrippa's knowledge of the work of Jesus and of the prophets, for they have an intimate connection.

III. Agrippa Almost Persuaded (vv. 28-32).

Whether Agrippa's answer was a contemptuous sneer or not, it is quite evident that his soul was wrought upon. He saw the claim of Christ upon him but was unwilling to yield. Sad, indeed, that a man should be so near to eternal life, and yet lost! Paul took Agrippa seriously. His heart longed that Agrippa, and all concerned, might accept Christ and be saved.

For Religious Peace

It would make greatly for religious peace in this country if we all learned to rejoice when we hear of others finding God in any way, and ceased to insist that our own way is the best.—A. Herbert Gray.

Dignity of Manners

A certain dignity of manners is absolutely necessary to make even the most valuable character either respectable or respected in the world.—Lord Chesterfield.

Santa and His "Calling List"

Dorinda and Her Christmas Locket

She Decides to Reveal Mysterious Picture Back of Tiny Glass.

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

DORINDA'S hair was so pretty that you almost forgot to look at her face, but when you once looked at her face, you forgot all about her hair. At least that's what Sandy McQuinn said, and he ought to know, if anybody. Sandy had made a thorough study of Dorinda at all seasons when it was possible. In fact his research work would have done credit to a scientist.

There were times when Sandy felt exuberant, and there were other times when he called himself a complete idiot. This simple barometer of emotions indicated the various moods of Dorinda. Dorinda could scintillate with wit and mischief; Dorinda could droop in lovely wistfulness; Dorinda could be severe, and Dorinda could be melting. One never knew which Dorinda, of her many selves, one would find.

"And," declared Sandy to his mother, who had gently inquired about his restlessness, "she keeps wearing that silver locket. She won't say who gave it to her and she won't let me peek inside. If she's got some other chap in there I'll just drop her! She need not think she can lead me around by the nose!"

Sandy struck an attitude of great superiority and strode about the room like a pirate. His mother smiled a little, but said nothing.

After a few dark mutterings and final gestures, Sandy said he was "going out" but would be in early. He lifted his hat from a hook in the hall and went straight as his feet could carry him, to the house of Dorinda Kent.

This sort of thing lasted all fall. By Christmas time Sandy had worked himself up to a great state of nerves over the locket. Dorinda was quite sweet about it, but also quite firm. She would never let Sandy see the contents.

Christmas eve Sandy's mother gave a little party to her son's friends. It was done chiefly for Dorinda, so Sandy's mother would have the opportunity of judging the girl's charms for herself. Sandy was earnest and solemn about all the arrangements, and even went to the point of asking his mother if she had dusted the back part of the piano—was she sure?

"We'll probably sing, you know," he said, "and I want everything to look just right."

"Yes, my son," answered his mother. Dorinda floated in like a bit of thistle-down. She was the last to arrive. Immediately she became the lively center of a laughing group. But she had not forgotten her manners; pushing the young people away, she went up to Sandy's mother, and captured her in half a minute. Mrs. McQuinn did not even know when she surrendered. "No wonder," she mused aloud, when the lovely girl had returned to the others, "no wonder poor Sandy is temporarily out of his head—she is a witching lass."

Of course there was dancing; of course there were good things to eat, and of course there was a bit of mistletoe cleverly concealed in an obscure corner. Sandy had privately seen to this. In fact the whole party revolved around this particular bit of mistletoe.

Just before the last dance Sandy lured Dorinda into that corner by saying he had something very important to tell her. When she stood directly under the tiny bough, looking up at Sandy with her dark, laughing eyes, Sandy opened his campaign. He put his arms around her and kissed her on her soft, flushed cheek.

She was furious. In the resulting scramble, the silver locket snapped its ring and dropped to the floor. Here was opportunity! Sandy ducked, evading the swift reach of the girl's hand. He had the locket in his grasp. It was open!

"You shan't look at it!" cried Dorinda, looking stormy but adorable.

"I've got it!" announced Sandy, "and if you don't let me look at it I shall probably kiss you again!"

Dorinda stamped her little satin slipper. "Oh, well, I don't care!" she said and shrugged her shoulders.

Sandy looked down at the open locket. It was perfectly empty.

"There!" triumphed Dorinda. "See what you have for your pains. Nothing but a locket to let."

Sandy drew her farther into the corner. "Why not put me in as tenant?" he suggested coaxingly.

And do you know what happened? After five minutes of battle, of Dorinda growing prettier every minute, of Sandy's profound arguments, the girl took the locket from him, and after prying up the tiny glass from one section, and removing a blank paper, said shyly: "Look, Sandy McQuinn!"

And Sandy found his own grin beaming up at him out of the silver square of the locket. It was a snapshot taken in the summer when Dorinda and he had been on a picnic.

"Was the party a success?" asked Sandy's mother as they were parting for the night.

Sandy was inarticulate. He waved his arms about in excited circles. He made funny little noises in his throat. At last he was able to speak.

"I guess she likes me, all right!" he said, "I found out what's in that locket!"

First Crop Paid for His Land

"IN 1920," says Mr. Adolph Bellard, of St. Paul de Metis, a district in Alberta, Canada, "I had twenty-five acres of wheat, which yielded forty bushels per acre."

Forty bushels per acre!

With wheat at, say, $1.50 per bushel, forty bushels give a return of $60.00 per acre.

Yet, you can buy land in Canada capable of growing the best wheat in the world for $15.00 to $20.00 per acre!

Started With $1,500.00
Now Worth $20,000.00

Adolph Bellard came to Canada from Rice Lake, Wisconsin, in 1911, with $1,500.00 capital. He settled in the "park" country of Central Alberta—mixed prairie and woodland. To-day, he is worth $20,000.00, owns a half section of fine, rich land, with good buildings and all the necessary livestock and equipment. "This is a splendid country," says he, "with plenty of water, trees and shelter for cattle, which run out all winter."

There is a New Opportunity For You in Canada

Canada, your great and busy neighbor, offers you a new opportunity such as is not to be found in older lands. Canada, with its rich, low-priced lands and bigger crops at lower cost, is a country of real opportunity. Think of the advantages for your boys and girls to grow up where fertile farms of their own may be had at low cost.

Canada, your near neighbor, just across an imaginary line, offers you this chance; friendly folk, thrifty, law-abiding and industrious. You will enjoy free political institutions, free public schools, and an ordered Government, based on the free will of a free people.

Canada has great areas of rich, fertile, virgin land awaiting improvement along the railroads, at prices ranging from $15.00 to $20.00 per acre. Fully improved farms at somewhat higher prices, with long terms of payment if desired. Free homesteads, farther back, for pioneers. This is the supreme chance of the present generation.
